Subject: Re: Sokolovsky Continued Deposition

My client is a party, she is not subject to a subpoena. Subpoenas pertain to non-parties only (in my experience).

Either way, it is clear from our endless exchanges, and the last consent letter filed on the docket, that we agreed that your client would go first, and then my client. It is also clear that we are not finished with the deposition, and we stopped right in middle of a topic, when you decided we needed to end at 6 pm.

You can appear and do whatever you need, but my client will not appear on Monday, until your client's deposition is finished or the issue is resolved by the Court.
